Your expertise, your high standards as a supervisor, and your concern for those who worked for you have earned the admiration and respect of all of your colleagues throughout FBIS. In recent years, during the often difficult transitions first to MIDAS and then to AFS, your unmatched understanding and knowledge of the FBIS communications system and your ability to share your knowledge and concerns have been key elements in the design and execution of these complex projects so essential to the future of this office.

As you move now into this new and well deserved stage of your life, you take with you the affection and sincerest esteem of all your many friends in FBIS. I know they join me in wishing you many happy, healthy, and fruitful years of retirement, and in hoping that we will still see you from time to time at FBIS functions for many years to come.

Sincerely,
